

East Lancashire Coachbuilders: The Definitive History by David Barrow

The Story of a British Bus and Coach Manufacturer

East Lancashire Coachbuilders was one of the UK's leading bus and coach manufacturers for over 100 years. The company was founded in 1894 and built its first bus in 1907. Over the years, East Lancashire Coachbuilders produced a wide range of buses and coaches, including single-deckers, double-deckers, and articulated buses.

East Lancashire Coachbuilders was known for its high-quality products and its innovative designs. The company was one of the first to introduce the rear-engine bus, and it also developed the "Plaxton" body style, which became a popular choice for bus operators in the UK and around the world.
